Every now and again, freighter captains found themselves with a need to haul cargo that had extreme handling requirements. Typically, this would involve special atmospheres and/or climate control (Tholian Gem Flowers, for example); in some cases, a technology like stasis might be needed.

This skid allows a freighter to handle a relatively small amount (up to 150 spaces) of such exotic cargoes without having to find a full-size cargo pod that was properly outfitted. It consists of an APR, a battery, three cargo boxes and a transporter. The skid adds six to the BPV of the freighter, and does not add any crew.
